PENNAWANT GOES TO BROWNIES

The Winning of Yesterday's Game Precludes Possibility of Defeat.

BARTON HEIGHTS DEFEATED

Manchester Took the Game From Richmond—Cross On the Diamond.

Standing of the Clubs.

Club	W.	L.	P.C.
Brownies	21	9	.700
Barton Heights	17	13	.565
Manchester	12	17	.414
Richmond	9	19	.321

Manchester and the Brownies were the victors in yesterday's contest at Broad Street Park, the Champions defeating the Highlanders and Richmond going down before the boys from across the river. Barton Heights lost by the score of 6 to 2, and Richmond got three runs and one hit in the fifth inning. There is no hope now of changing the standing of the clubs by the end of the season. The Brownies have the pennant, and Richmond is at the other end of the line. Barton Heights has clinched second place, and Manchester is third. This is the way they will stand when the season closes next Saturday, for no matter which team win or lose, the percentage column will not be changed around enough to affect a club's standing.

Manchester Won.
The first game was between Richmond and Manchester, and it looked to be going for either team until after the seventh. Charters was hit for nine times, while Leake allowed only seven runs. But it was not the hits in particular that counted mostly for Manchester and against Richmond. The latter team made some costly errors, and there was some base-running that lacked several degrees of being up to the standard.

Manchester was at bat first. Hogan fanned at some microbes, and Sharp opened one up that Cross got under for. Then Bridges took one to the side and was advanced to third on Albert's safe one. Then Ford, he with the six feet four of height, stretched out against one and sent it to freedom, scoring the first run. Elmore made it interesting by sending a single to the outfield.

It was one two three with the Richmonders until the fourth inning, when they pushed a man over. Cross started it with a single, pliffed the second sack and came home on an error. But in the third Manchester had scored another run, and in the fifth they piled up two tallies. The sixth inning gave them one run and this was sufficient for the time being. Richmond got a run in the seventh, and in the ninth made a desperate try to score. Shotton struck out, but Bridges took one to the side and sauntered down to first. Sent then muffed one at McEvoy, who let it pass. On the play Bridges scored, but the other two men were easy outs.

The official score follows:

Soft Wood Made Hard.

Soft woods can be made into hard woods for all the practical purposes of industry, since a Frenchman has shown the world how to overcome the supreme difficulty which has hitherto stood in the way of this process.

This difficulty is the rapidity with which wood becomes soft and decayed around the spikes and bolts. The invention by the French engineer is of exceptional merit in overcoming this by a device consisting of a screw down composed of a cylindrical piece of wood formed in a screw with an exceedingly fine thread.

A hole is bored in the center to admit either screw bit or ordinary spike. The device is made of well-seasoned and creosoted beech or birch wood.
